Reviews

Academic

[University of Illinois] Physics program in Concord Academy is considered to be the strongest and the most difficult course in the school. Performance Arts as well as other Math/Science courses are competitive subjects in this school. Humanities is weak and has limited course selections. Mostly lecture courses. Lots of group work. Small classes, no more than 12 students per class. Rigorous workload.

College Counseling

[University of Illinois] Begin preparation junior year. Meet with counselor as often as you want. Provide strong recommendations.

Admissions Process

[University of Illinois] Be creative. Well-rounded students and exceptional athletes have advantages.

Extra-Curricular Activities

[University of Illinois] Required to do a major campus clean-up in Spring. Lots of opportunities for community services that are not required, but almost all students are involved. On Wednesday afternoon, there is "club block" which is the time when all students do their extracurricular activities.

Quality of School Life

[University of Illinois] The school has seven houses supporting 50% of the students (the rest are day students). The school rarely has safety issues. All school facilities including labs, library, technology resources are all in the same Academic building. Strict—hardly any free time outside of scheduled times.
